About The Author

Tom Poland

Biography

Tom Poland writes about the South, its people, culture, and natural features. His career is one of books, magazine writing-editorship, filmmaking, and photography. Poland's weekly column appears in more than 65 newspapers and online journals. An oft-requested speaker, Poland gives talks throughout Georgia and the Carolinas. Governor Henry McMaster conferred the Order of the Palmetto, South Carolina's highest civilian order, upon him for his body of work. A Georgia native and graduate of the University of Georgia, he lives in Columbia, South Carolina.

Educational Talk

Travel with Tom Poland via an illustrated talk and explore the mysterious landforms known as Carolina bays. See these beautiful and mysterious coastal plain depressions up close. Experience the lushness of orchids, carnivorous plants, and myriad species of wildlife and learn of their immense value to nature and mankind. Learn how the Venus fly trap works and visit Carolina bays in three states. Consider theories of origin ranging from the unbelievable to the plausible. Best of all, escape civilization for a bit.

BOOK SALE
